

St. Baldrick's Shave Your Head for Children's Cancer Research

Mike Cleveland, Division 50 president, had no qualms about shaving his head again this year for a good cause. In early March, Mike, and many others shaved while participating in the St. Baldrick's Shave Your Head for Children's Cancer Research event. Participants from the community shave their heads bald out of solidarity for those thousands of children nationwide that lose their own hair to cancer treatments and these brave volunteers shave so that one day no child will have to lose their hair to cancer. In 2011 St. Baldrick's has already raised over $16,000,000 for their cause! It's not too late to make a donation to this worthy cause, go to www.stbaldricks.org.

Business Development Update

By David Little

The total dollar value of projects we have added to our backlog in the first quarter of 2011 is on pace to match the same time period in 2010. Denver and Aspen continue to be the regions where we are finding work, together these areas account for over 90% of our volume. In the past two months Denver has added two major projects, 2020 Lawrence, a unit project and Marquez Hall at the School of Mines. Marquez Hall is a terra cotta rain screen system that installs similar to a stone cladding but has open joints to allow wind driven moisture to penetrate the wall. The weather barrier is behind the terra cotta and provided by others.

Although the Vail Valley and Sun Valley remain slow in the amount of work we have added, we are seeing an increase in the number of plans coming in to estimating for projects in Steamboat, Vail, Summit County and in Sun Valley.

GERALD GALLEGOS LEADERSHIP SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAM

Gerald Gallegos was no stranger to the Building Stone Institute. He served as president and was a long-time member in promoting natural stone. In honor of him, BSI has created a scholarship program that is designed to increase participation in the BSI by next generation stone industry employees by off-setting financial burdens to the employer. Scholarship recipients are awarded complimentary attendance at the BSI event of their choice in return for their service toward meeting industry needs.

According to Jane Bennett, Executive Vice President of BSI, this scholarship embodies Gerald's passion for the stone industry as well as his commitment to encouraging others to step up and meet today's challenges. Prospective candidates are required to complete an application and submit a 500 word essay proposing a solution or aid to a current industry recognized challenge or association need. Joshua Buster of Lyons Sandstone submitted a winning essay and presented his idea during the Standardizing Stone Terminology seminar on

Employees of the Month by Jon Lest

Fidel Macias and his crew, Miguel Jimenez, Alejandro Almeida and Andres Arguelles are employees of the month for April and May 2011. They have been installing the interior sandstone cladding at the new History Colorado Center. This scope of work includes over 1,200 pieces of 2" polished Colorado Buff Sandstone at the Auditorium, Elevators and the main Staircase rising up 64'. With an average piece size of 2' x 3', Fidel and his crew have done an outstanding job with production as well as meeting the tight installation tolerances required for this work. Quickly approaching the 75% completion mark, the crew is anticipating a strong finish that will result in bringing the job in under bud-get. Congratulations to all of you for a job well done, all of your efforts and to an outstanding finished product that is the standard of Gallegos.

Human Resources Health Tip

Courtside:

Protect your feet and ankles when you play basketball, racquet ball, or tennis

- Warm up for at least five to ten minutes. Walk around and do gentle stretches for the lower legs, feet and ankles.
- Wear the right shoes for the right sport. Make sure your ankles are properly supported. Running shoes are not for basketball due to their lack of support on the sides. If you have flat feet or high arches you may need arch supports in your shoes.
- Don't "Play through Pain." because of the hard, slick floors and quick side-to-side movements, stress fractures are common in court sports but can have very few symptoms. If you have foot pain that doesn't go away see your doctor.

REVITALIZE! by Dacia Belisle Woodworth

Now is the perfect time to remodel, and we are reaching out to Property Managers, Long-time Clients, Realtors, and Resorts to remind people in the Vail and Roaring Fork Valleys that we are here to help with projects large and small. Approximately 300 5"x7" postcards were recently sent out.

Geoff Soelter took the initiative in talking to management and launching a campaign to contact this market sector. He is heading up the effort in the Vail Valley with follow-up to the postcard recipients in this area. Art Breda will man the front in the Roaring Fork Valley.

Team Dimensions by Jennifer Law

During February and March each Division's senior leadership team participated in the Team Dimensions training facilitated by HR. As a part of the process, each participant completed an on-line profile which generated an individual report specific to the person's work style. Each group then came together for a three hour session to learn about individual styles as well as the dynamics of the team as a whole. An outcome from the sessions included recognition of our company's high priority for analysis, accuracy, logic and quality (Refiners). However, as a group we have much less tendency to focus on interaction and new ideas. Based on this observation, several divisions cited that they would like to work on fostering relationships and being more open to innovation. Overall, everyone gained a better appreciation for each individual's strengths and how to better work with co-workers. Senior Leadership will use the insight gained from this training to continue to utilize the amazing talent that Gallegos is so fortunate to have in this organization!
